

Andy MacKinnon is a research ecologist with the British Columbia Forest Service, Coast Region, in Victoria, British Columbia. He's also an adjunct professor at the School of Resource and Environmental Management at Simon Fraser University. Andy's research interests include land use planning, forest ecology and management, ecosystem classification and mapping, non-timber forest products, and native plants, fungi and lichens.